

Prophetic Word: A Cold Wind of Revival from Maine to Washington given by Greg Hood on 08/03/2021

This has really begin to stir in me that God is moving across the northern part of America from coast to coast. I see the wind of the Lord blowing across from the State Maine all the way through Washington State. I see it, it's like a cold wind that God is blowing. I heard the Lord saying that everything that He has not determined to live is going to begin to die when this cold wind begins to blow across the northern half of America. I heard the Spirit the Lord saying that as this cold wind blows, (we've always referred to the fire of God in revival), but I heard the Lord say that this cold wind is going to begin to stir a revival and an awakening within the northern half of our nation like we have never seen before. And this cold wind is going to go from Maine to Washington. It's going to have a different flavor, a different feel than some of the other revivals that are happening in the nation. The Lord said just as he owns the night, he owns the cold. I heard the Lord say that this is going to be something so very unique. So when you feel the cold winds blowing, know that revival and awakening is beginning to come out of the northern half of our nation.

So, Father, we pray into this, that from Maine to Washington, Washington to Maine, even parts of Canada, even into this fall when the cold winds begin to blow, we're going to begin to see signs of revival and awakening taking place through the northern half of our nation. Father, I thank you, that even though many have written that area off, you have not written it off. You've not said you're done with that area. They're not too far gone for you. They're not too liberal for you. As your breath begins to blow over our nation's northern borders, your breath will begin to bring life again. And Father, just as you put your nostrils to Adam's nostrils and you breathed life into him, you are breathing Kingdom life now. You are breathing Heaven's life into the northern half of our nation. So, Father, we decree it right now: Receive the Wind of the Lord! Receive this north wind that God is beginning to blow over the northern half of our nation. Father, we thank you for this today. Lord, we thank you also that what you're doing is not just on the northern borders, but you're doing it also in the south. In Jesus Name!
